

Jessica Carter, Visiting Lecturer, Department of Biology

Dr. Jessica Carter is a Visiting Lecturer in the Department of Biology at Georgia State University. She also serves as the Laboratory Supervisor for the instructional teaching labs for microbiology, fundamentals of microbiology, and genetics. She is currently piloting an undergraduate research course focusing on the relationship between viruses and the induction of different programmed cell death pathways.